Presenter: Nicole Brown, CANARI

The Caribbean Natural Resources Institute (CANARI) is an independent non-governmental organisation with over 20 years experience in sustainable development in the insular Caribbean. CANARI works to create avenues for the equitable participation and effective collaboration of Caribbean people and institutions in the sustainable management and use of the region's natural resources, through an integrated regional programme of research, analysis and advocacy.

Over the past 20 years the Institute has developed a thorough knowledge of issues relating to sustainable forest and coastal management, rural livelihoods and associated sectors such as tourism and agriculture in the insular Caribbean. The results of the Institute's research and analysis in these fields have been disseminated throughout the region through publications, its website, technical assistance and training.

CANARI delivers has an ongoing programme of training courses at both national and regional level, including topics such as:

- Stakeholder Analysis for Natural Resource Management
- Institutional Arrangements for Protected Areas
- Participatory planning and management
- Understanding and Managing Natural Resource Conflicts
- Organisational Development for government agencies and civil society organisations
- Strategic planning for community-based tourism
- Institutional, legal and policy requirements for community-based tourism
